"The only real excitement I have had in connection with my office was when the residents asked to have a rural free delivery service put in, and the people of Lincoln and LaGrange began to quarrel as to whether the route should start at I aGrange and end at Lincoln or vice versa. The dispute was complicated on account of

by the National Horse Show Association. It is the twenty-third annual exhibition and it promises to be as successful as it has been in former years.

The show will open at 3 o'clock to-morrow morning, and each morning, afternoon and evening this week the judges will be kept busy passing on the merits of the horses. The Madison Square Garden never looks better than it does during Horse Show The big building is decorated in the colors of the association, orange and black. In the centre is the ring, the floor of which is covered with tanbark. In the centre of this is the judges' stand and around it is the boardwalk. The ushers are in uniform in the colors of the association and the grooms in the ring are also in the proper colored uniforms. A bugler calls each class into the ring, opens the show with a reveille and closes it each night with taps. An orchestra in the top gallery plays popular music. It is a difficult matter to obtain the right men to act as judges at a show like this and horsemen from all parts of the country who make a specialty of the different types are invited to act. This year two have been brought from England. These are C. Edward E. Cooke of Bygrave, who will judge the hackneys, and F. Vivian Gooch of Windsor, who will attend to the saddle horses. Mr. Gooch has been here several times, but this is Mr. Cooke's first visit

Alfred B, Maclay and H. N Potter of New York and Julian C. Keith of Warrenton, Va., will judge thoroughbreds. The trotters and roadsters will be looked after by William Pollock of New York, Senator C. W. Barnum of Little Rock, Conn., and David M. Look of New York. Four-in-hands, tandems, carriage and harness horses, horses, carriages and appointments will be judged-by Jay F. Carlisle, E. Victor Loew, Jr., and E. von Carlisle. E. Victor Loew, Jr., and E. von der Hors' Koeb. Joseph E. Widerer of Philadelphia will again officiate with the ponies in harness and Charles E. Bunn will judge the pony stallions and brood mares. George C. Clausen will judge the five gaited saddle horses. Alfred B. Maclay and H. N. Potter of New York and Julian C. Keith of judge polo ponies and stallions for getting polo ponies. A. B. Maclay will judge cavalry horses and chargers and H. L. Herbert will judge draught and Street Cleaning De-

The number of entries this year shows a slight falling off from previous years, but this was expected The quality of the horses entered, however, is high. Many of the horses are new to the show ring in this section some have been brought from England and some have come from different parts of the courtry. Exhibitors who have shown in former years, too, are missing, but their places have been taken by others necessary.

Sorg, Carr Bros. Edwin H. Weatherbee and Charles Holloway are Weatherbee and Charles Holloway are among the largest exhibitors. It is getting to be a fad nowadays to make these entries from some farm rather than in the name of the owner, and William H. Moore is one of the few who make all entries in their own names. The Oakland Farm is owned by Alfred G. Vanderbilt. Reginald W. Vanderbilt enters in the name of the Sandy Point Farm. Both of these farms are near Newport. C. W. Watson of Baltimore enters his horses as from the Fairmont Farm. The Elsinore Farm is owned by Miss Elsie R. Ladew, Dosoris Farm by H. L. Fratt of Brooklyn and Westchester Farm by Charles W. Holloway.

There are many women too among the exhibitors and some will drive their own horses in the ring. Mrs. John Gerken is the most prominent of these. She is an expert at getting her exhibits in shape and at showing them well. Miss Emily H. Bedford, daughter of A. C. Bedford of Brooklyn, Miss Elsie R. Ladew, Mrs. W. S. Elliott. Mrs. William Orr Barclay, Miss Grace Watt. Miss Mabel B. Hooley and Mrs. Julian Morris are others who will be seen in the ring.

There is only one class for thoroughbreds, and this is for stallions. Prizes amounting to $5.75 are offered, and in addition to these the Jockey Club has added $200 should the winner prove to be among those placed by There are many women too among the the Jockey Club has added $200 should the winner prove to be among those placed by the Breeding Bureau in New York State. Among these seven are St. Carolus by imp. St. Blaise, owned by O. R. Williams; imp. Crickdale. owned by Crow and Murray of Toronto; Knight of Pearl, owned by T. L. Watt; Surmise, owned by the Rancocas Stock Farm, and The Bird.

The trotting breeding classes have attracted well, and Horatio N. Bain, Crow & Murray, W. C. Freeman and A. R. Gillis have all entered liberally. In the stallion classes will be Sir Robbins, by Stamboul; Mosby, by Allentons; Lorenzo Hamlin, by Daredevil, and several youngstere. In the classes for mares are Alcina Robbins, by Sir Robbins; Beautiful Rose, by Baron Rose, and Wilteen, by Wilton.

Roadsters are always popular at this show, but this year G. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, who has won so many prizes with his horses, is an absentee. Joseph Agontini, Miss Ladew, Alfred B. Maclay, Williams.

Roadsters are always popular at this show, but this year G. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, who has won so many prizes with his horses, is an absentee. Joseph Agontini, Miss Ladew, Alfred B. Maclay, William J. Butterfield and Dunleyy Millbank have entered liberally. Among the horses to be seen will be Sadie McGregor, Miss Banshaw, Rose Worthy, Marguerite Margrave, Senator Clark and Lady Clark.

The chief attraction in the hackney classes this year will be the entries of Frederick Pabst. He will show Sir Humphrey, winner of the hackney champioeship at the international show at London; Meanwood Majesty, son of the celebrated Forest King; Caynton Phyllis, Merry Pet and Morning Glory II. Reginald Vanderbilt has some fine hackneys and he will show Tiger Lillie, and Lilfield Venus. The Carr brothers, who have brought many famous horses to this country, have some new ones for this show and will send into the ring Waverley Prince, by Performer. Mrs. John Gerken will show Brandon, W. C. Freeman has entered Aquinus, Fortunatus, General of Cornwall and Fedora; William H. Moore has entered Lowthorpe Duke, by Polonius; R. U. Carman has entered Chanque Squire, and Hancefort will be shown with four of his get and in the class for halfbreds.

The classes for horses in harness always fill well. Among the entries are C. W. Watson's Ringing Bells, Norena, Kitty Grey, Lord Baltimore and My Maryland. Judge William H. Moore will show the champion Forest King, winner of championships and the Waldorf cup; King Forest, Manella, Pride o' Prides, King of Kings and many others.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt will show several that he took across the Atlantic and showed the London show. Among these will be the prime of the process. Marie Tempest, Lord Burleigh and Lord Brooke. August Belmont has entered Arrow, a stylish mare. Miss Emily Bedford will show Donner, and there are several from the Eleinore Farm.

READY FOR HORSE SHOW WEEK

The Compete at the Vanderbilts, J. Campbell Thompson and H. L. Pratt will meet in the carriage horse classes with such well known animals as Gibson Boy, Sweet Marie, Amazement, Astonishment, Operator, Queen Delts, Orastor, Speaker, The Major, Dr. Selwonk and His Majesty.

There are three classes for tandems. Miss Emily H. Bedford has entered two teams, one of which is Hidred and Plymouth Champion, C. W. Watson has entered two teams, one of which is Hidred and Plymouth Champion, C. W. Watson has entered Kitty Grey and Norens and Lord Baltimore and My Maryland, William H. Moore will drive Debator and Forest King, Alfred Vanderbilt Polly Prim and Pretty Peggy and Sweet Marie and Polly Prim.

Four classes for four in hands have at tracted twenty-two teams, representing C. W. Watson, Mrs. John Gerken, Carr Bros., Paul A. Sorg, William H. Moore, Alfred G. Vanderbilt and J. Campbell Thompson.

Amende H. L. Pratt will meet in the carriage and H. L. Pratt will mee

Among the exhibitors of ponies are the Misses Watt, who always win prizes; Miss Ladew, Mrs. Gerken, Carr Bros. and Reginald Vanderbitt.

There are 155 actions in the regular saddle. There are 153 entries in the regular saddle

There are 133 entries in the regular saddle horse classes and in this lot are James Watson Webb's Bonito, James G. Marshall's Brigand, Harvey S. Ladew's Elsa, Mrs. Gerken's Surprise, Harry T. Peter's King of Spades, Mrs. W. A. McGibbon'a Lady McDonald, Mrs. W. S. Elliott's Winona, Miss Elsie Ladew's Reliance and Rufus L. Patterson's St. Ages.

Elsie Ladew's Reliance and Rufus L. Patterson's St. Agnes.
In the hunting and jumping classes are to be seen Westchester, Farm's Taconite, Centennial, Midlothian, Oneiros and Cygnet. Crow and Murray, Henry V. Colt, S. Taber Willets, several hunt clubs, George Chipchase, George Pepper, F. Ambrose Clark, Edwin H. Weatherbee and Clarence F. Levi have entered their cracks, which will meet in the regular classes in the high jump and in the championships.

There are championships for all regular breeds, and winners of regular classes meet in the championships.

There are championships for all regular breeds, and winners of regular classes meet toward the end of the week in these competitions. Winners of former shows are eligible for these events.

There are several special prizes of value to be competed for. The National Horse Show gold challenge cup, worth $500, is for the best pair of horses suitable for a phaeton. C. W. Watson, Mrs. William Orr Barclay, William H. Moore, Alfred G. Vanderbilt and Reginald Vanderbilt will compete for this prize. Last year Judge Moore won the Waldorf cup for the third time with Forest King and he at once offered a cup under similar conditions, worth $850, for the best horse suitable for a gig. Forest King, for whom the cup is named, is not to compete. Nine entries have been made for this trophy, which is the most valuable in the show. These are C. W. Watson's Ringing Belis and Lord Baltimore; Miss Emily H. Bedford's Hildred, Harry D. Holloway's Scotland's Queen, Edward Knieriem's Kissing, J. W. Harriman's Nala, Mrs. Jarvis Hunt's Golden Flash, Reginald W. Vander-Bilt's Lord Burleigh and Phoebe Watton.

The Addie challenge cup is for hackneys. This is worth $250. The Alfred Maclay cup is for hunters. Another valuable trophy is the English hackney challenge cup for hackney harness horses.

as to whether the route should start at I agrange and end at Lincoln or vice versa. The dispute was complicated on account of the way the two rival railroads ran up into northern Maine.

"Both roads branched off at Old Town, the Maine Central going east by north and touching at Lincoln, and the Bangor and Aroostook road branching from the same place and going north by west and hitting LaGrange. The Government was paying a fat subsidy for carrying mails to northern Maine, and though the total weight of the mail left at Maxfield could be carried every day by a Newfoundland dog the fact that Maxfield was listed among the offices made it profitable enough for the roads to get into a wrangle about how it should be carried.

"For more than two years the mail going from Maxfield to Washington was filled with letters and petitions and remonstrances concerning where the mailcarrier should start and where he should leave off. Every year four or five special inspectors were sent down and rode clear over the route and called upon me and asked questions the way lawyers do in big murder trials.

"I was getting afraid I should have to die in office and never know how the two roads came out in their quarrel, when last summer word came that the Maine Central road had won and the new carrier would start from Lincoln and go through to La Grange (every morning, returning over the back route the following afternoon. After that the Third Assistant Postmaster-General wrote me a real politie letter, informing me that I had been relieved from "At the time my job was knocked out from under me I was the oldest postmaster in continuous service in the United States and had been for the previous five years and more. There were half a dozen or more postmasters who were appointed by Buchanan and perhaps a dozen who came in during Lincoln's administration, but old Franklin Tourtilotte, who was appointed by old Franklin Pierce, was the only survivor from the days previous to 1857. I have spent years in investigating the rival claims and know what I have said to be a post office at Maxfield. With the Lincoln post office six or seven miles to the north and east, the La Grange post office five miles to the south and west, our people could have got along well enough without having a post office of their own, but long before the election of Pierce they had begun to plan for it and as soon as he was chosen, and months before his inauguration, there were petitions in circulation in my favor and as soon as the new machinery was in running order at Washington l was ground out through the mill and received my commission among the first.

"It was always a mystery to me why they should want to give the office to me who had been an old Whig and who had voted for Tippecanoe and Tyler too and the whole ticket since I came of age. To be sure, I knew how to write a good hand, but there was at least ten Democrats in town who could write as well as I could.

"My idea was that they picked me out because I was the only man in town who could put a good nib on a goosequill pen. Being a shoemaker, you see, and spending my time in travelling from house to house making and repairing shoes for the families. I had fallen into the habit of repairing pens for the school children until I had become so skilled that when a new postmaster was wanted to fit into the new post office they naturally picked me out by what people now call a civil service examination!

Nothing unusual happen ed to me in al the fifty-four years of my holding office. Before the civil war broke out I changed my politics and became a long heel Republican, but President Buchanan did not seem to notice it.

"In 1867 and 1868 when President Johnson

"No: I did not make money or get rich during my long term as postmaster at Maxfield. The most I ever earned in one year was during the war with Spain, when everybody seemed to be writing letters. In 1898 my percentage on the sale and cancellation of stamps amounted to $103.40.

"In no other year has it reached the $100 mark. Some years before the civil war the total sale of stamps did not reach $25, and of course the law permitted me to take the entire proceeds."

$250,000 in Furniture Under Price. Many Savings of Half: :: A Sale Unprecedented.

NOTHING TO EQUAL THIS FURNITURE ANNOUNCEMENT has ever been made, we believe It is the very height of the season. We have here an immense and splendid stock of the finest Furniture made by the foremost makers in America. And on this magnificent stock we announce to-day REDUCTIONS WHICH IN MANY CASES WILL RUN TO FULL HALF OF WHAT THE PRICES WOULD BE REGULARLY.

The Sale is made up of three elements-surplus stocks from Furniture makers; the balance of the Darlington Furniture bought from the makers and delayed until now in transit, and, most important of all, the straight reductions on the furniture in our own stock.

This is a room making Sale. We have planned for the most complete and splendid stock of holiday Furniture ever shown in this vicinity. We must make room on our floors and in our warehouses for this incoming stock. And because it is a room making sale we must actually get rid of the Furniture. There would be no object in holding the Sale if we had to hold the Furniture also. So all purchases must be delivered-within 30 days at the most.
